REPORTS OF COMMITTEES HEARD BY BUSINESS MEN

New Bridge and Good Roads Matters Take Up Time

REPRESENTATIVE NAMED

C. O. Frye is Appointed Member of Statistic Committee on New County

Committee reports, the appointment of committee 3 and discussion of the new county scheme occupied most ofthe time at the meeting of the Charleroi Business Men's Association last night. An auditing, a social, a room committe and a committee to revise the by-laws were appointed. Charles O. Frye was named the representative of the Charleroi Business Men's Association to attend a meeting of representatives from other towns along the valley on the new county question.

Hugh E. Fergus, Esq., chairman of the committee on a free bridge between Charleroi and Monessen, reported that the committee had conferred with the Monessen Board of Trade, and stated there was considerable enthusiasm manifested. So far little beyond feeling the sentiment has been done. T. P. Sloan of the committee on securing a continuous good road between Charleroi and Bentleyville reported that he had conferred with the county commissioners on the subject and there was reason to believe that the effort of the association would not be without result, although at present there was some difficulty in the way for the movement.

A permanent social committee was appointed to consist of O. B. Clutter, C. J. Mathews and N Greenberg. A auditing committee to audit the books was named to consist of Carl M. Wertz, C. J. Mathews and Charlie Steel. W. C. Clark, George S. Might and John H. Bowers are to compose the room committee and Dr. H. J. Repman, George S. Might, W. C. Clark and Dr. J. W. Hunter a committee to revise the by-laws.

Four applications were received and acted upon favorably. After the meeting which was the first regular one after reorganization for the year lunch was served. There was a good attendance.

Miners Issue Grave Charges

Circular Put Out Condeming Action of Certain Committee Miners

A circular containing a resolution unanimously adopted at the 22nd annual convention of District No. 12, United Mine Workers of America branding the work of the vigilance committee of District No. 5 as a deliberate and premeditated plot to discredit the organization miners in that district and break up the organization, is now being circulated.

The resolutions were adopted following the appearance of a pamphlet entitled "Lifting the Lid." In the same resolutions the miners of District No. 12 pledged their support to the men in charge of the organization's affair in the Pittsburg district. The authors and signers of the pamphlet are described as tools of corporations who will stop at nothing to accomplish their purpose.

FACTION ASKS THAT FEEHAN BE EXPELLED FROM MINERS' UNION

Delegates to Pittsburg Convention Take Radical Action in Warm Session Against District President

BOOKS DEMANDED FROM PRESENT ORGANIZATION

President Francis Feehan of District 5, United Mine Workers of America, was expelled from the Miners' organization yesteday by a vote of 57 to 9. This action was taken by the miners now in special meeting in Moorehead Hall, which was called over the heads of the district officials by representatives of various locals. The motion to expel President Feehan was made by Delegate McGrogan who said: "Inasmuch as Francis Feehan has been expelled from his local, which is 1339 Castle Shannon, I think this convention should throw him out of the presidency and out of this organization and take similar action regarding the other district officers, for not attending their convention when they were notified to do so."

A motion to rescind the action taken was made later but was voted down. Chairman Gibbons then said he wanted everything to be done fairly and squarely and asked the delegates to take time to consider the action taken. Adjournment was then moved but Chairman Gibbons appealed to the delegates to wait until E. S. McCullough of Bay City, Mich., a member of the executive board, who is representing President Lewis, explain to give them the full meaning of their action. The motion to adjourn, however, was carried.

A committee, consisting of Delegates James Brown, S. A. Wetzel and David Kepart, was appointed to see District Secretary Timothy Donovan and get the records from him regarding the standing of Chairman Gibbon in his local. The committee reported at the afternoon session that Secretary Donovan refused to give them any information on the matter and also refused to permit them to see the nomination papers of Gibbons, who was a candidate against President Feehan at the recent election of president.

A motion by Delegate Barry that a committee be appointed to await on the president and demand that he attend the meeting under pain of expulsion from the organization, was carried unanimously. Delegates Andrew Pushcar, James Sabon and William Thirwell were appointed. The expulsion of Feehan followed the report of this committee, that he refused to attend the meeting.

Just before adjournment a motion was carried demanding the books, records and all possessions of District No. 5 now in possession of the district officials.

JOHN MITCHELL BECOMES EDITOR

While the salary connected with this position is not large, the position carries a tremendous political power and the move is taken as an indication that Mitchell intends to re-enter the field as a candidate for president of the organization at the next convention.

Brand New Cadillac Car Ordered for His Own Use By Well Known Judiciary

Judge J. A. McIlvaine has joined the automobile enthusiasts. The judge had under consideration for some time the purchase of a car, and has he carried out that purpose by buying from the Washington Automobile company a Cadillac-30, four-door, 1911 model, one of the finest cars the Cadillac company is now putting on the market.

It is stated that Judge McIlvaine often longs to go over his old stamping ground down in the Pigeon creek section, below Vanceville and the new auto will give him a chance to take many a jaunt down that way. When not in court during the coming summer months, the judge will not likely be found at home, for he expects to make good use of his newly acquired transportation facility.

For County Commissioner

JOHN J. CAIRNS,

ROSCOE, PA.

Primaries, Saturday, June 3. 1911.

Acts Promptly

Governor Tener has acted promptly in the so-called Ritterville scandal. This is the State insane hospital which has been in the process of construction for nine years, and for which $1,700,000 of the State's money has been expended. The hospital is still unfinished, and not a single patient has ever been treated within its walls. A commission had been created by a previous Legislature to investigate the hospital, but has never done anything. The public is demanding that the investigating committee be investigated.

Acting upon this demand Governor Tener has prepared a bill which will legislate the present commission out of office and create a new commission to be appointed by the Governor. The bill will be so drawn that it will admit of no delay in the construction, and the appropriations will be so made that each of the separate buildings must be finished promptly on time and according to specifications. This work had been started during the construction of the State capitol, and was carried on along the same slack lines that led to the capitol scandal. Governor Tener's prompt action will bring the matter to a focus, and those responsible for the delay and unnecessary expense will be obliged to give an accounting.

On the Wrong Tack

The action of the self-formed and unofficial convention of coal miners of the Pittsburg district in expelling the legally elected president from the union is a most extraordinary proceeding, to say the least. This action is the result of factional strife, which if continued cannot be otherwise than disastrous to the miners' organization. The Mail is not conversant with all the details of the controversy which had led to this factional strife, but it has never seen any cause or reason to doubt the loyalty and sincerity of President Feehan, or to impugn his efficiency as a leader. If he has made mistakes during his administration, they were in the interests of the general principles of his organization and for the uplift of humanity, and not on account of personal or ulterior motives. Those who know Francis Feehan personally will never be led to believe that he is false to his trust, or has ever betrayed his associates.

In calling a district convention over the head of the president and district officials the faction that did so has assumed a grave responsibility. Such action is most revolutionary, and should be resorted to only in extreme emergencies. It is not believed by conservative miners that the situation was so grave as to warrant such drastic measures. No matter what the outcome may be, the action of calling this convention and expelling the president from the organizaton upon unsustained charges cannot be otherwise than demoralizing to their organization and the cause of labor. Internecine strife defeats more causes that the enemy outside.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"It's getting so now that a college education is necessary for every kind of business, even to store keeping," said J E Masters, the Fallowfield avenue grocer, yesterday. "I always remember a conversation the late Dr. T. B. Noss of the California Normal had with a prominent up-river coal operator some years ago. The latter had been sending his son to school at California, and when the boy was through his father put him at work on the coal tipple. Meeting the operator one day afterward, Dr. Noss asked him how the young man was getting along and what he was doing.

"I set the boy at work greasing cars and helping to dump coal," relpied the operator.

"Well," said Dr. Noss, "you may rest assured that the boy can do that work just a little bit better and more intelligently because of his education and school training."

"That made an impression upon me," said Mr. Masters, "and from that time on I have more fully realized the advantages of education in all the walks of life."

"One of the queerest as well as one of the most embarrassing experiences I ever had occurred at the county seat recently," related a Charleroi man.

"As you can see I am somewhat undersized, or to put it more exactly am what would be termed a 'runt.' On a little business and pleasure trip at the county seat I visited a friend there. We decided to take a short walk up street, and the day being an especially fine one for walking we were going along at a good rate, when we noticed a large heavy set man approaching from the opposite direction and walking somewhat faster than we. He was looking stolidly at the ground. When he came nearer I naturally sidestepped a trifle to pass, but at the same time he gave a sudden lurch in my direction and struck me broadside. Naturally that wouldn't be expected to phase a person a bit, but down I went like a ten pin, and my hat cavorted down street. Many people were on the street and howls of laughter went up. The man who had struck me hardly knew what had happened, but after I got up, red in the face and ready to start something, he looked at me calmly a moment, then said:

"'You don't want to try any tricks on me, my dear sir, you don't want to try any tricks on me.'

"He talked on and I recovered my hat and got away from the place as quickly as I could. I haven't been back since."

TRAINING SEALS.

These Dexterous Animals Easily Taught to Perform Tricks.

"The cardinal principle in training animals," says an animal trainer, "is not to attempt to make an animal do anything contrary to the nature of its particular species. To be successful a trainer must know enough about the habits of the animals he has under training to fit the tricks he would teach them to their natural bent.

"The seal is very easily taught. You begin with one seal, some small pieces of fish and a string. You let the seal sit on his pedestal, something he likes to do by nature; then you throw him one of the pieces of fish, and he naturally and easily catches it. Next you tie a piece of fish on the end of your string and swing it toward the seal. He catches this, too, and you keep moving away from him and swinging the fish to him from an increasing distance. Now you are ready to begin with the hat or cornucopia. You put a piece of fish in the bottom of it and toss it to the seal. The seal is dexterous by nature, and his nose, quickly detecting the fish in the tip of the cone, seeks it out. The cone catches on his snout, and he bites out the fish and tosses the cone aside. Before long he comes to associate the cone with fish, and he will catch any number of similar ones and toss them aside when he fails to find what he wants.

"Balancing the big rubber ball is based on the same principle. The ball is soaked in fishy brine and thrown to the seal. He gets the odor and tries his best to get into the ball and find what he is after. This results in his balancing the ball on his nose, a feat to which his supple neck and his natural feeding habits are all adapted, and then he gets his piece of fish as a prize."—New York World.

BIBLES IN THE WORLD.

The Scandinavian Eddas the Most Recent of the Seven.

The world has seven Bibles. They are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, the Tripitaka of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the Three Vedas of the Hindus, the Zendavesta and the Scriptures of the Christians.

The Koran is not older than the seventh century of our era. It is a compound of quotations from the Old and New Testaments, the Talmud and the gospel of St. Barnabas. The Eddas of the Scandinavians were published in the eleventh century and are the most recent of these seven Bibles. The Buddhists' Tripitaka contain sublime morals and pure inspirations. Their author lived and died in the seventh century before Christ.

The sacred writings of the Chinese are called the Five Kings, "king" meaning web of cloth or the warp that keeps the threads in their places. They contain the choicest sayings of the best ages on the ethicopolitical duties of life. These sayings cannot be traced to a period higher than the eleventh century B. C. The Three Vedas are the most ancient books of the Hindus, and it is the opinion of great scholars that they are older than the eleventh century B. C.

The Zendavesta of the Persians is the grandest of all the sacred books next to the Bible. Zoroaster, whose sayings it contains, was born in the twelfth century B. C.—New York Herald.

Too Strong.

"My boy tells me you discharged him," said the late office boy's mother. "You advertised for a strong boy, and I certainly thought he was strong enough."

"Madam," replied the merchant, "he was too strong. He broke all the rules of the office and some of the furniture in the two days he was with us."

SHAVING IS NOT FATAL.

Barbers Nowadays Do Not Use Hammers and Cold Chisels.

In reply to a correspondent who says he yearns to have his flowing beard removed and yet lacks the Spartan firmness of the early martyrs to face the ordeal and makes a pathetic appeal for advice the alfalfa editor of the Emporia Gazette unfeelingly remarks:

"The alfalfa editor can offer no advice or encouragement to such a trembling soul. It seems probable that he has worn his whiskers for many years. It is likely that he hasn't purchased a shave for a quarter of a century and therefore is ignorant of the improvements in the art tonsorial which have been achieved in recent years. It is no longer like going through a slaughter house to an open grave to be shaved by an expert barber. In fact, that operation has been so shorn of its terrors that many eminent citizens consider it a pleasure to visit the barber. It is no longer necessary to strap a patient down in the chair before shaving him; neither is it necessary to administer anaesthetics to his whiskers.

"The man whose only reason for wearing whiskers is the fact that he fears the barber shop will gain little sympathy. If he tries to explain that he cannot shave himself without suffering the agonies of the all fired he will gain less. Such excuses might have had some force long ago, when barbers used hammers and cold chisels, but science has made giant strides in recent years, and the country is full of painless barbers, and a clean shave costs no anguish or inconvenience."

MICROSCOPIC MESSAGES.

How a Single Pigeon Might Carry a Whole Library.

For more than 2,000 years carrier pigeons have been used to carry messages when no other means sufficed, and during the siege of Paris, when 363 birds were sent out from the doomed city, one of the birds performed the almost incredible feat of carrying to the outside world on one trip no less than 40,000 messages averaging twenty words each. This was 800,000 words, or the equivalent of five or six average novels.

This marvel was accomplished by means of microscopic photography, the messages being first printed with ordinary type and then photographed and rephotographed until they had been reduced several hundred diameters. The final photographs were taken on films or pellicles of collodion, each of which, about two inches square, contained 50,000 words. A dozen of these films, rolled up in a quill, weighed but one twenty-eighth of an ounce. The messages could, of course, be read with a microscope without the necessity of rephotographing and enlarging.

Under favorable conditions and for comparatively short distances pigeons have carried as much as three-quarters of an ounce. Using the photo reduction method, it would therefore be possible for a single bird to carry messages equal in words to no fewer than 120 ordinary volumes.—Harper's Weekly.

Whistler's White Lock.

As long as the name of James McNeill Whistler lives among those who saw him it will recall the famous white lock which stood out so conspicuously from the mass of his black hair. It was, as he used to say himself, "well placed" and was always treated from the harmonous point of view to develop its greatest effect in his appearance. One day when Dorothy Menpes, daughter of the well known English artist Mortimer Menpes, was a baby and was asleep on her pillow Whistler went to see her. A white feather had by chance settled on her head and lay in a spot exactly corresponding with the white lock on his own head. "That child is going to develop into something great," he exclaimed, "for, see, she begins with a feather, just like me!"

Gypsy Queens.

On occasions America treats its gypsy monarchs with full regal pomp. Matilda Stanley was accorded an almost royal funeral in 1878 at Dayton, O., where, ten years later, another queen was crowned with all proper ceremonial. In England, too, gypsy queens have received all due honor. Esther Faa Blythe, who died in 1883, had many members of the aristocracy on her visiting list, and she, too, had a regular coronation. But, on the whole, the gypsy has not had a very good time in England. An act of 1592, for example, made it a felony without benefit of clergy to be merely seen for a month in the society of gypsies, while for actually being a gypsy no punishment was too severe.—London Standard.

A Premium on Marriage.

In Belgium they place a premium on marriage by allowing a married man two votes at an election as against the single man's one. In Madagascar one must be a father or pay for the default. If a man is unmarried or childless at the age of twenty-five he must contribute annually $3.75 to the support of the state, and each woman who has remained single or is child less at twenty-four is taxed $1.80 per year.

A "Friendly Match."

I speak of a "friendly match," not at all forgetting that dictum of the old Scot to whom his opponent, breaking some trivial rule, said, "I suppose you won't claim that in a friendly match?" "Friendly match!" was the reply. "There's no such thing at golf!"—London Telegraph.

Much is done in the name of friendship; so are many.—Exchange.

HAD FURNISHED ROOMS.

And He Had a Sign Out to Let the Neighbors Know.

In a little settlement on the outskirts of Chicago two houses stand out more boldly than the rest. These two are the domiciles of two Italians of means, who, although being very ignorant men, vied with each other for the social leadership of the locality.

One day a newcomer, in search of temporary lodgings, attracted by a conspicuous sign in the window of the first of these two houses, stepped to the door to make inquiry.

"I see you have furnished rooms here," he said to the swarthy man who answered his knock.

"Ya," rejoined the foreigner, pointing to the furnished room sign, "dere's da sign."

"Well, if you have one that's suitable I'd like to rent it for awhile."

"We no rent da rooms," was the bewildering declaration. "I got my family in here, and dey take up all da house."

"Don't rent any rooms? Why, then, have you that sign stuck in the window?"

"I'll tell you. Las' week dat fellow next door hang such a sign in his front window, an' we'n I see dat I put one of da same kind in my front window, just to show da people dat he ain't only man in dis place dat have his rooms furnished!"—Judge's Library.

SEEING THE FAR EAST.

It Should Be Viewed Through the Bible and "Arabian Nights."

The best books on the east, as every one knows, are the Bible and the "Arabian Nights," and yet I found most travelers were saturating themselves with snippity descriptions of monuments and places, with tabloids of history, with technical paragraphs on architecture and the ethnic religions, with figures about the height of this and the length of that or condensed statistics of exports and imports and the tonnage through the Suez canal and dates about the Pharaohs and the Mughals. No wonder they see nothing, know nothing, enjoy nothing and come home bringing a few expletives, adjectives and photographs which can be had for a small price in either New York or London.

The first thing to do in going to the east is to turn your education out on your desk so that you can get at the bottom of it, and there you will find the Bible and the "Arabian Nights" and the "Odyssey" and "Iliad" and "Virgil" and "Herodotus" and "Xenophon," and you will realize what a fool you were not to have devoted more time to them when you were asked to do so. Guide books can get you to the east, but they do not get you inside. It is temperament, not trains, that counts.—Price Collier in Scribner's Magazine.

Perfumes.

Civet is an aromatic substance of the consistence of honey and is obtained from a pouch on the civet cat, an animal from two to three feet long and about ten or twelve inches high. The best known of animal odors is musk, which is obtained from the musk deer. China furnishes the best quality. Twenty-five pods or sacks are packed in oblong boxes composed of plates of lead inclosed in a caddy made of pasteboard. Musk is obtained from Assam, Siberia, the Altai mountains and other parts of northern Asia. Ambergris is another animal odor. It is secreted in the intestines of the spermaceti whale. A very curious fact is that ambergris is only accumulated by disease—that is, it is only secreted in a sick whale. It is very hard, of a light gray color and is found in quantities varying from twenty to fifty pounds. It is worth about £6 an ounce.—London Standard.

Mucilage and Gum.

"I went into a stationer's shop in London one day," said an American, "and said to the shop assistant:

"'Do you keep mucilage?'

"'No, sir,' the young man answered. 'We try to take in all the papers, but there are so many new ones coming out. Still, I can order mucilage for you, sir. Which number did you want?'

"I learned afterward that I should have asked for gum. They don't have the word 'mucilage' over there in England.

"But an Englishman traveling on one of our railways stopped a train boy and said:

"'Have you got any gum?'

"'No; I don't use it, boss,' the boy replied in friendly fashion, 'but I can let you have a chaw off this here plug.'"—Washington Star.

An Accomplished Linguist.

"Did you learn any French while you were in Paris?" asked Bildad, meeting Slithers shortly after his return from Europe.

"Oh, a little," said Slithers. "Not so very much, though. I got so I could say cigarette in French."

"Good!" said Bildad. "What is cigarette in French?"

"Cigarette," said Slithers.—Harper's Weekly.

Taking Away From the Subject.

When Frederick Robertson of Brighton, the great preacher who had written much about Tennyson's poems and for whom the poet had a high regard, first called upon him, "I felt," said Tennyson, "as if he had come to pluck out the heart of my mystery, so I talked to him about nothing but beer."

Fox as a Gamester.

Charles James Fox, the English statesman, was even more notorious in the gaming world than he was famous in the world of politics. He had squandered $250,000 before coming of age. He became one of the most profligate gamesters of the vicious days in which he lived. Some of his finest displays in debate were sandwiched between excitement such as would unnerve most men who had no serious business on hand. Walpole has given a glimpse of a typical passage in this extraordinary man's life. He had to take part in the discussion on the thirty-nine articles in parliament on a certain Thursday. He had sat up playing hazard from Tuesday evening until 5 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. An hour before he had recovered $60,000 that he had lost and by dinner time, which was 5 o'clock, ended losing $55,000. On Thursday he spoke in the debate, went to dinner at past 11 at night; thence to a club,—where he drank till 7 the next morning; thence to a gambling house, where he won $30,000, and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon he set out on a journey to Newmarket.

Pirates and Strategy.

The virtuous island of Sark was not always so. When Edward III. was king, Sark was a haunt of pirates and wreckers. Sir A. Conan Doyle in "Sir Nigel" tells how they lived not upon the island, "but from what they can gather upon the sea around it. They are broken folk from all countries—justice fliers, prison breakers, reavers, escaped bondsmen, murderers and staff breakers who have made their way to this outland place and hold it against all comers." The merchants of Rye and Winchelsea fitted out an expedition against those scourges of the narrow seas. A landing was obtained by strategy. Leave was obtained to bury a supposititious dead sailor on the island, the burying party to come unarmed. But that apparent coffin was filled with weapons, and so was Sark cleansed of its evil inhabitants.—London Standard.

A Story of Mathews.

Charles Mathews one day previous to the period of his publicly proclaimed dire bankruptcy invited a friend to dine with him. The walnuts were washed down by some rare sherry.

"That's a delicious wine," his friend exclaimed. "It must have cost you a lot of money."

"It didn't cost me anything that I know of," the flighty comedian answered, with a shrug.

"You had it given to you, then?" the friend suggested.

"Oh, no," answered Mathews; "I bought it from Ellis, in Bond street."

"But he will charge you something for it?" the friend exclaimed in astonishment.

"I believe he does write something down in a book," Charles retorted gravely. "Let's have another glass, my boy."

When Tea Was Dear.

Those who grumble at the price of tea should turn for consolation to the records of its price in early times. At its first introduction into England, about the middle of the seventeenth century, tea fetched anything between £6 and £10 a pound, and though a fall in price quickly took place the East India company still had to pay over £4 for the two pounds of tea which it presented the king. However, even thus it is doubtful if the tea merchants got very fat, seeing that the importation of some 4,000 pounds in 1678 was enough to glut the market for some years.—London Chronicle.

English Injustice.

An Australian tourist traveling in the west of Ireland asked an old woman how far it was to the nearest town. She sadly looked at him, then sighed and said:

"It was five nice miles two years ago, but some English brute came over with chains and made it seven, and our hearts are broke walking it ever since. Bad luck to them!"

And she disappeared into the house, leaving him there.—Illustrated Bits.

Cramp In the Leg.

To those who suffer from cramp in the leg at night the following hint may be useful: When the cramp comes on take a good strong string—a long garter will do—wind it round the leg over the place that is affected and take an end in each hand and give it a sharp pull, one that will hurt a little. Instantly the cramp will depart, and the sufferer can return to bed assured it will not come on again that night.

A Mean Question.

"Yes, it was George's idea to give me a silver spoon for every birthday."

"How many has he given you?"

"Why, twenty-two."

"Why did he stop?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Cautious.

"I have a remarkable history" began the lady who looked like a possible client.

"To tell or sell?" inquired the lawyer cautiously.—Washington Herald.

A Dubious Saying.

He—They say that the face is an index of the mind. She—I don't know. It doesn't follow because a woman's face is made up that her mind is.—Boston Transcript.

It Takes Time.

"Has little Mrs. R. consoled herself ever her husband's death yet?"

"Oh, no; no yet! You know what a long time these insurance companies take to pay!"

We must not sit down and look for miracles.—Eliot.

THE SOUP PLATE.

A Seventeenth Century Cookbook Tells Why It Was Invented.

A valet of Louis XIV. published a cookbook in 1659 in which he gives as follows the reason for the invention of the hollow soup plate:

The plates of the guests will be hollow in order that they may help themselves to as much soup as they may want without being obliged to take it spoonful by spoonful because of the disgust they may have for one another on seeing the spoon go from the mouth to the tureen.

Guests, it will be seen, used their own spoons to fill their plates, the large spoon to be used for serving the soup not being invented till some time later.

Yet even a hundred years after the invention of the soup plate (1749) a work on civility advised that all the dishes should be so placed on the table that every one could reach them with his spoon and that if the soup was served in a dish (tureen) every one should help himself with his own spoon without seeming to be in a hurry.

A work on manners that appeared just before the French revolution deemed it best to advise its readers that it was impolite to pass the spoon back and forth between the mouth and the tureen.

Difficult Horseback Feat.

There are no better horsemen in the world than the cavalry officers of the Italian army, yet even among them there are very few who could perform the feat achieved by one of them. To run an ordinary foot race is easy enough, but to run at full speed for several hundred yards holding in one hand a spoon on which rests an egg and to reach the goal without dropping the egg is a feat which must be practiced carefully a long time before it can be performed successfully, and as a result there are not many who can be sure of accomplishing it whenever they try. Great, therefore, was the surprise when an Italian officer mounted on horseback performed this difficult feat. Moreover, he selected a course in which there were two or three high fences, and these he cleared at full gallop without losing the egg.

Time For Stillness.

Mrs. MacLachlan was kind to her American boarder, but she did not propose to allow her to overstep the limits of a boarder's privileges, and she made it very clear. One Sunday the boarder returning from a walk found the windows of her room, which she had left wide open, tightly closed.

"Oh, Mrs. MacLachlan, I don't like my room to get stuffy," she said when she went downstairs again. "I like plenty of fresh air."

"Your room will na' get stuffy in one day," said her landlady firmly. "'Twas never our custom, miss, to hae fresh air rooshin' about the house on the Sawbath."

FACTION ASKS THAT FEEHAN BE EXPELLED FROM MINERS' UNION

Delegates to Pittsburg Convention Take Radical Action in Warm Session Against District President

BOOKS DEMANDED FROM PRESENT ORGANIZATION

President Francis Feehan of District 5, United Mine Workers of America, was expelled from the Miners' organization yesteday by a vote of 67 to 9. This action was taken by the miners now in special meeting in Moorehead Hall, which was called over the heads of the district officials by representatives of various locals The motion to expel President Feehan was made by Delegate McGregan who said: "Inasmuch as Francis Feehan has been expelled from his local, which is 1339 Castle Shannon, I think this convention should throw him out of the presidency and out of this organization and take similar action regarding the other district officers, for not attending their convention when they were notified to do so."

A motion to rescind the action taken was made later but was voted down. Chairman Gibbons then said he wanted everything to be done fairly and squarely and asked the delegates to take time to consider the action taken. Adjournment was then moved but Chairman Gibbons appealed to the delegates to wait until E. S. McCullough of Bay City, Mich., a member of the executive board, who is representing President Lewis, explain to give them the full meaning of their action. The motion to adjourn, however, was carried.

A committee, consisting of Delegates James Brown, S. A. Wetzel and David Kepart, was appointed to see District Secretary Timothy Donovan and get the records from him regarding the standing of Chairman Gibbon in his local. The committee reported at the afternoon session that Secretary Donovan refused to give them any information on the matter and also refused to permit them to see the nomination papers of Gibbons, who was a candidate against President Feehan at the recent election of president.

A motion by Delegate Barry that a committee be appointed to await on the president and demand that he attend the meeting under pain of expulsion from the organization, was carried unanimously. Delegates Andrew Pushcar, James Sabon and William Thirwell were appointed. The expulsion of Feehan followed the report of this committee, that he refused to attend the meeting.

Just before adjournment a motion was carried demanding the books, records and all possessions of District No. 5 now in possession of the district officials.

While the salary connected with this position is not large, the position carries a tremendous political power and the move is taken as an indication that Mitchell intends to re-enter the field as a candidate for president of the organization at the next convention.

For County Commissioner

JOHN J. CAIRNS,

ROSCOE, PA.

Primaries, Saturday, June 3, 1911.

Acts Promptly

Governor Tener has acted promptly in the so-called Ritterville scandal. This is the State insane hospital which has been in the process of construction for nine years, and for which $1,700,000 of the State's money has been expended. The hospital is still unfinished, and not a single patient has ever been treated within its walls. A commission had been created by a previous Legislature to investigate the hospital, but has never done anything. The public is demanding that the investigating committee be investigated.

Acting upon this demand Governor Tener has prepared a bill which will legislate the present commission out of office and create a new commission to be appointed by the Governor. The bill will be so drawn that it will admit of no delay in the construction, and the appropriations will be so made that each of the separate buildings must be finished promptly on time and according to specifications. This work had been started during the construction of the State capitol, and was carried on along the same slack lines that led to the capitol scandal. Governor Tener's prompt action will bring the matter to a focus, and those responsible for the delay and unnecessary expense will be obliged to give an accounting.

On the Wrong Tack

The action of the self-formed and unofficial convention of coal miners of the Pittsburg district in expelling the legally elected president from the union is a most extraordinary proceeding, to say the least. This action is the result of factional strife, which if continued cannot be otherwise than disastrous to the miners' organization. The Mail is not conversant with all the details of the controversy which had led to this factional strife, but it has never seen any cause or reason to doubt the loyalty and sincerity of President Feehan, or to impugn his efficiency as a leader. If he has made mistakes during his administration, they were in the interests of the general principles of his organization and for the uplift of humanity, and not on account of personal or ulterior motives. Those who know Francis Feehan personally will never be led to believe that he is false to his trust, or has ever betrayed his associates.

In calling a district convention over the head of the president and district officials the faction that did so has assumed a grave responsibility. Such action is most revolutionary, and should be resorted to only in extreme emergencies. It is not believed by conservative miners that the situation was so grave as to warrant such drastic measures. No matter what the outcome may be, the action of calling this convention and expelling the president from the organizaton upon unsustained charges cannot be otherwise than demoralizing to their organization and the cause of labor. Internecine strife defeats more causes that the enemy outside.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"It's getting so now that a college education is necessary for every kind of business, even to store keeping," said J. E Masters, the Fallowfield avenue grocer, yesterday. "I always remember a conversation the late Dr. T. B. Noss of the California Normal had with a prominent up-river coal operator some years ago. The latter had been sending his son to school at California, and when the boy was through his father put him at work on the coal tipple. Meeting the operator one day afterward, Dr. Noss asked him how the young man was getting along and what he was doing.

"I set the boy at work greasing cars and helping to dump coal," relpied the operator.

"Well," said Dr. Noss, "you may rest assured that the boy can do that work just a little bit better and more intelligently because of his education and school training."

"That made an impression upon me," said Mr. Masters, "and from that time on I have more fully realized the advantages of education in all the walks of life."

"One of the queerest as well as one of the most embarrassing experiences I ever had occurred at the county seat recently," related a Charleroi man.

"As you can see I am somewhat undersized, or to put it more exactly am what would be termed a 'runt.' On a little business and pleasure trip at the county seat I visited a friend there. We decided to take a short walk up street, and the day being an especially fine one for walking we were going along at a good rate, when we noticed a large heavy set man approaching from the opposite direction and walking somewhat faster than we. He was looking stolidly at the ground. When he came nearer I naturally sidestepped a trifle to pass, but at the same time he gave a sudden lurch in my direction and struck me broadside. Naturally that wouldn't be expected to phase a person a bit, but down I went like a ten pin, and my hat cavorted down street. Many people were on the street and howls of laughter went up. The man who had struck me hardly knew what had happened, but after I got up, red in the face and ready to start something, he looked at me calmly a moment, then said:

"'You don't want to try any tricks on me, my dear sir, you don't want to try any tricks on me.'

"He talked on and I recovered my hat and got away from the place as quickly as I could. I haven't been back since."

TRAINed SEALS.

These Dexterous Animals Easily Taught to Perform Tricks.

"The cardinal principle in training animals," says an animal trainer, "is not to attempt to make an animal do anything contrary to the nature of its particular species. To be successful a trainer must know enough about the habits of the animals he has under training to fit the tricks he would teach them to their natural bent.

"The seal is very easily taught. You begin with one seal, some small pieces of fish and a string. You let the seal sit on his pedestal, something he likes to do by nature; then you throw him one of the pieces of fish, and he naturally and easily catches it. Next you tie a piece of fish on the end of your string and swing it toward the seal. He catches this, too, and you keep moving away from him and swinging the fish to him from an increasing distance. Now you are ready to begin with the hat or cornucopia. You put a piece of fish in the bottom of it and toss it to the seal. The seal is dexterous by nature, and his nose, quickly detecting the fish in the tip of the cone, seeks it out. The cone catches on his snout, and he bites out the fish and tosses the cone aside. Before long he comes to associate the cone with fish, and he will catch any number of similar ones and toss them aside when he fails to find what he wants.

"Balancing the big rubber ball is based on the same principle. The ball is soaked in fishy brine and thrown to the seal. He gets the odor and tries his best to get into the ball and find what he is after. This results in his balancing the ball on his nose, a feat to which his supple neck and his natural feeding habits are all adapted, and then he gets his piece of fish as a prize."—New York World.

BIBLES IN THE WORLD.

The Scandinavian Eddas the Most Recent of the Seven.

The world has seven Bibles. They are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, the Tripitaka of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the Three Vedas of the Hindus, the Zendavesta and the Scriptures of the Christians.

The Koran is not older than the seventh century of our era. It is a compound of quotations from the Old and New Testaments, the Talmud and the gospel of St. Barnabas. The Eddas of the Scandinavians were published in the eleventh century and are the most recent of these seven Bibles. The Buddhists' Tripitaka contain sublime morals and pure inspirations. Their author lived and died in the seventh century before Christ.

The sacred writings of the Chinese are called the Five Kings, "king" meaning web of cloth or the warp that keeps the threads in their places. They contain the choicest sayings of the best ages on the ethicopolitical duties of life. These sayings cannot be traced to a period higher than the eleventh century B. C. The Three Vedas are the most ancient books of the Hindus, and it is the opinion of great scholars that they are older than the eleventh century B. C.

The Zendavesta of the Persians is the grandest of all the sacred books next to the Bible. Zoroaster, whose sayings it contains, was born in the twelfth century B. C.—New York Herald.

Too Strong.

"My boy tells me you discharged him," said the late office boy's mother. "You advertised for a strong boy, and I certainly thought he was strong enough."

"Madam," replied the merchant, "he was too strong. He broke all the rules of the office and some of the furniture in the two days he was with us."

SHAVING IS NOT FATAL.

Barbers Nowadays Do Not Use Hammers and Cold Chisels.

In reply to a correspondent who says he yearns to have his flowing beard removed and yet lacks the Spartan firmness of the early martyrs to face the ordeal and makes a pathetic appeal for advice the alfalfa editor of the Emporia Gazette unfeelingly remarks:

"The alfalfa editor can offer no advice or encouragement to such a trembling soul. It seems probable that he has worn his whiskers for many years. It is likely that he hasn't purchased a shave for a quarter of a century and therefore is ignorant of the improvements in the art tonsorial which have been achieved in recent years. It is no longer like going through a slaughter house to an open grave to be shaved by an expert barber. In fact, that operation has been so shorn of its terrors that many eminent citizens consider it a pleasure to visit the barber. It is no longer necessary to strap a patient down in the chair before shaving him; neither is it necessary to administer anaesthetics to his whiskers.

"The man whose only reason for wearing whiskers is the fact that he fears the barber shop will gain little sympathy. If he tries to explain that he cannot shave himself without suffering the agonies of the all fired he will gain less. Such excuses might have had some force long ago, when barbers used hammers and cold chisels, but science has made giant strides in recent years, and the country is full of painless barbers, and a clean shave costs no anguish or inconvenience."

MICROSCOPIC MESSAGES.

How a Single Pigeon Might Carry a Whole Library.

For more than 2,000 years carrier pigeons have been used to carry messages when no other means sufficed, and during the siege of Paris, when 863 birds were sent out from the doomed city, one of the birds performed the almost incredible feat of carrying to the outside world on one trip no less than 40,000 messages averaging twenty words each. This was 800,000 words, or the equivalent of five or six average novels.

This marvel was accomplished by means of microscopic photography, the messages being first printed with ordinary type and then photographed and rephotographed until they had been reduced several hundred diameters. The final photographs were taken on films or pellicles of collodion, each of which, about two inches square, contained 50,000 words. A dozen of these films, rolled up in a quill, weighed but one twenty-eighth of an ounce. The messages could, of course, be read with a microscope without the necessity of rephotographing and enlarging.

Under favorable conditions and for comparatively short distances pigeons have carried as much as three-quarters of an ounce. Using the photo reduction method, it would therefore be possible for a single bird to carry messages equal in words to no fewer than 120 ordinary volumes.—Harper's Weekly.

Whistler's White Lock.

As long as the name of James McNeill Whistler lives among those who saw him it will recall the famous white lock which stood out so conspicuously from the mass of his black hair. It was, as he used to say himself, "well placed" and was always treated from the harmonous point of view to develop its greatest effect in his appearance. One day when Dorothy Menpes, daughter of the well known English artist Mortimer Menpes, was a baby and was asleep on her pillow Whistler went to see her. A white feather had by chance settled on her head and lay in a spot exactly corresponding with the white lock on his own head. "That child is going to develop into something great," he exclaimed, "for, see, she begins with a feather, just like me!"

Gypsy Queens.

On occasions America treats its gypsy monarchs with full regal pomp. Matilda Stanley was accorded an almost royal funeral in 1878 at Dayton, O., where, ten years later, another queen was crowned with all proper ceremonial. In England, too, gypsy queens have received all due honor. Esther Faa Blythe, who died in 1883, had many members of the aristocracy on her visiting list, and she, too, had a regular coronation. But, on the whole, the gypsy has not had a very good time in England. An act of 1592, for example, made it a felony without benefit of clergy to be merely seen for a month in the society of gypsies, while for actually being a gypsy no punishment was too severe.—London Standard.

A Premium on Marriage.

In Belgium they place a premium on marriage by allowing a married man two votes at an election as against the single man's one. In Madagascar one must be a father or pay for the default. If a man is unmarried or childless at the age of twenty-five he must contribute annually $3.75 to the support of the state, and each woman who has remained single or is childless at twenty-four is taxed $1.80 per year.

A "Friendly Match."

I speak of a "friendly match," not at all forgetting that dictum of the old Scot to whom his opponent, breaking some trivial rule, said, "I suppose you won't claim that in a friendly match?" "Friendly match!" was the reply. "There's no such thing at golf!"—London Telegraph.

Much is done in the name of friendship; so are many.—Exchange.

HAD FURNISHED ROOMS.

And He Had a Sign Out to Let the Neighbors Know.

In a little settlement on the outskirts of Chicago two houses stand out more boldly than the rest. These two are the domiciles of two Italians of means, who, although being very ignorant men, vied with each other for the social leadership of the locality.

One day a newcomer, in search of temporary lodgings, attracted by a conspicuous sign in the window of the first of these two houses, stepped to the door to make inquiry.

"I see you have furnished rooms here," he said to the swarthy man who answered his knock.

"Ya," rejoined the foreigner, pointing to the furnished room sign, "dere's da sign."

"Well, if you have one that's suitable I'd like to rent it for awhile."

"We no rent da rooms," was the bewildering declaration. "I got my family in here, and dey take up all da house."

"Don't rent any rooms? Why, then, have you that sign stuck in the window?"

"I'll tell you. Las' week dat fellow next door hang such a sign in his front window, an' we'n I see dat I put one of da same kind in my front wind'. w, just to show da people dat he ain't only man in dis place dat have his rooms furnished."—Judge's Library.

SEEING THE FAR EAST.

It Should Be Viewed Through the Bible and "Arabian Nights."

The best books on the east, as every one knows, are the Bible and the "Arabian Nights," and yet I found most travelers were saturating themselves with snippity descriptions of monuments and places, with tabloids of history, with technical paragraphs on architecture and the ethnic religions, with figures about the height of this and the length of that or condensed statistics of exports and imports and the tonnage through the Suez canal and dates about the Pharaohs and the Mughals. No wonder they see nothing, know nothing, enjoy nothing and come home bringing a few expletives, adjectives and photographs which can be had for a small price in either New York or London.

The first thing to do in going to the east is to turn your education out on your desk so that you can get at the bottom of it, and there you will find the Bible and the "Arabian Nights" and the "Odyssey" and "Iliad" and "Virgil" and "Herodotus" and "Xenophon," and you will realize what a fool you were not to have devoted more time to them when you were asked to do so. Guide books can get you to the east, but they do not get you inside. It is temperament, not trains, that counts.—Price Collier in Scribner's Magazine.

Perfumes.

Civet is an aromatic substance of the consistence of honey and is obtained from a pouch on the civet cat, an animal from two to three feet long and about ten or twelve inches high. The best known of animal odors is musk, which is obtained from the musk deer. China furnishes the best quality. Twenty-five pods or sacks are packed in oblong boxes composed of plates of lead inclosed in a caddy made of pasteboard. Musk is obtained from Assam, Siberia, the Altai mountains and other parts of northern Asia. Ambergris is another animal odor. It is secreted in the intestines of the spermaceti whale. A very curious fact is that ambergris is only accumulated by disease—that is, it is only secreted in a sick whale. It is very hard, of a light gray color and is found in quantities varying from twenty to fifty pounds. It is worth about £6 an ounce.—London Standard.

Mucilage and Gum.

"I went into a stationer's shop in London one day," said an American, "and said to the shop assistant:

"'Do you keep mucilage?'

"'No, sir,' the young man answered. 'We try to take in all the papers, but there are so many new ones coming out. Still, I can order mucilage for you, sir. Which number did you want?'

"I learned afterward that I should have asked for gum. They don't have the word 'mucilage' over there in England.

"But an Englishman traveling on one of our railways stopped a train boy and said:

"'Have you got any gum?'

"'No; I don't use it, boss,' the boy replied in friendly fashion, 'but I can let you have a chaw off this here plug.'"—Washington Star.

An Accomplished Linguist.

"Did you learn any French while you were in Paris?" asked Bildad, meeting Slithers shortly after his return from Europe.

"Oh, a little," said Slithers. "Not so very much, though. I got so I could say cigarette in French."

"Good!" said Bildad. "What is cigarette in French?"

"Cigarette," said Slithers.—Harper's Weekly.

Taking Away From the Subject.

When Frederick Robertson of Brighton, the great preacher who had written much about Tennyson's poems and for whom the poet had a high regard, first called upon him, "I felt," said Tennyson, "as if he had come to pluck out the heart of my mystery, so I talked to him about nothing but beer."

Fox as a Gamester.

Charles James Fox, the English statesman, was even more notorious in the gaming world than he was famous in the world of politics. He had squandered $250,000 before coming of age. He became one of the most profligate gamesters of the vicious days in which he lived. Some of his finest displays in debate were sandwiched between excitement such as would unnerve most men who had no serious business on hand. Walpole has given a glimpse of a typical passage in this extraordinary man's life. He had to take part in the discussion on the thirty-nine articles in parliament on a certain Thursday. He had sat up playing hazard from Tuesday evening until 5 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. An hour before he had recovered $60,000 that he had lost and by dinner time, which was 5 o'clock, ended losing $55,000. On Thursday he spoke in the debate, went to dinner at past 11 at night; thence to a club, where he drank till 7 the next morning; thence to a gambling house, where he won $30,000, and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon he set out on a journey to Newmarket.

Pirates and Strategy.

The virtuous island of Sark was not always so. When Edward III. was king, Sark was a haunt of pirates and wreckers. Sir A. Conan Doyle in "Sir Nigel" tells how they lived not upon the island, "but from what they can gather upon the sea around it. They are broken folk from all countries—justice fliers, prison breakers, reavers, escaped bondsmen, murderers and staff breakers who have made their way to this outland place and hold it against all comers." The merchants of Rye and Winchelsea fitted out an expedition against those scourges of the narrow seas. A landing was obtained by strategy. Leave was obtained to bury a supposititious dead sailor on the island, the burying party to come unarmed. But that apparent coffin was filled with weapons, and so was Sark cleansed of its evil inhabitants.—London Standard.

A Story of Mathews.

Charles Mathews one day previous to the period of his publicly proclaimed dire bankruptcy invited a friend to dine with him. The walnuts were washed down by some rare sherry.

"That's a delicious wine," his friend exclaimed. "It must have cost you a lot of money."

"It didn't cost me anything that I know of," the flighty comedian answered, with a shrug.

"You had it given to you, then?" the friend suggested.

"Oh, no," answered Mathews; "I bought it from Ellis, in Bond street."

"But he will charge you something for it?" the friend exclaimed in astonishment.

"I believe he does write something down in a book," Charles retorted gravely. "Let's have another glass, my boy."

When Tea Was Dear.

Those who grumble at the price of tea should turn for consolation to the records of its price in early times. At its first introduction into England, about the middle of the seventeenth century, tea fetched anything between £6 and £10 a pound, and though a fall in price quickly took place the East India company still had to pay over £4 for the two pounds of tea which it presented the king. However, even thus it is doubtful if the tea merchants got very far, seeing that the importation of some 4,000 pounds in 1678 was enough to glut the market for some years.—London Chronicle.

English Injustice.

An Australian tourist traveling in the west of Ireland asked an old woman how far it was to the nearest town. She sadly looked at him, then sighed and said:

"It was five nice miles two years ago, but some English brute came over with chains and made it seven, and our hearts are broke walking it ever since. Bad luck to them!"

And she disappeared into the house, leaving him there.—Illustrated Bits.

Cramp In the Leg.

To those who suffer from cramp in the leg at night the following hint may be useful: When the cramp comes on take a good strong string—a long garter will do—wind it round the leg over the place that is affected and take an end in each hand and give it a sharp pull, one that will hurt a little. Instantly the cramp will depart, and the sufferer can return to bed assured it will not come on again that night.

A Mean Question.

"Yes, it was George's idea to give me a silver spoon for every birthday."

"How many has he given you?"

"Why, twenty-two."

"Why did he stop?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Cautious.

"I have a remarkable history" began the lady who looked like a possible client.

"To tell or sell?" inquired the lawyer cautiously.—Washington Herald.

A Dubious Saying.

He—They say that the face is an index of the mind. She—I don't know. It doesn't follow because a woman's face is made up that her mind is.—Boston Transcript.

It Takes Time.

"Has little Mrs. R. consoled herself over her husband's death yet?"

"Oh, no; no yet! You know what a long time these insurance companies take to pay!"

We must not sit down and look for miracles.—Eliot.

THE SOUP PLATE.

A Seventeenth Century Cookbook Tells Why It Was Invented.

A valet of Louis XIV. published a cookbook in 1655 in which he gives as follows the reason for the invention of the hollow soup plate:

The plates of the guests will be hollow in order that they may help themselves to as much soup as they may want without being obliged to take it spoonful by spoonful because of the disgust they may have for one another on seeing the spoon go from the mouth to the tureen.

Guests, it will be seen, used their own spoons to fill their plates, the large spoon to be used for serving the soup not being invented till some time later.

Yet even a hundred years after the invention of the soup plate (1749) a work on civility advised that all the dishes should be so placed on the table that every one could reach them with his spoon and that if the soup was served in a dish (tureen) every one should help himself with his own spoon without seeming to be in a hurry.

A work on manners that appeared just before the French revolution deemed it best to advise its readers that it was impolite to pass the spoon back and forth between the mouth and the tureen.

Difficult Horseback Feat.

There are no better horsemen in the world than the cavalry officers of the Italian army, yet even among them there are very few who could perform the feat achieved by one of them. To run an ordinary foot race is easy enough, but to run at full speed for several hundred yards holding in one hand a spoon on which rests an egg and to reach the goal without dropping the egg is a feat which must be practiced carefully a long time before it can be performed successfully, and as a result there are not many who can be sure of accomplishing it whenever they try. Great, therefore, was the surprise when an Italian officer mounted on horseback performed this difficult feat. Moreover, he selected a course in which there were two or three high fences, and these he cleared at full gallop without losing the egg.

Time For Stillness.

Mrs. MacLachlan was kind to her American boarder, but she did not propose to allow her to overstep the limits of a boarder's privileges, and she made it very clear. One Sunday the boarder returning from a walk found the windows of her room, which she had left wide open, tightly closed.

"Oh, Mrs. MacLachlan, I don't like my room to get stuffy," she said when she went downstairs again. "I like plenty of fresh air."

"Your room will na' get stuffy in one day," said her landlady firmly. "'Twas never our custom, miss, to hae fresh air rooshin' about the house on the Sawbath."
